80 Glorious Years of Loyola School, Jamshedpur

Tarumitra Centre for Ecology: An Invitation to Partner in Nurturing a Greener Future

Dear Loyoleans,

Greetings from your Alma Mater. We are proud that our Beloved Loyola School is celebrating 80 glorious years, and we will have the closing ceremony with a docu-drama, Masti Ki Patshala, presented by our students on December 18, and an Alumni Evening on December 19. I look forward to welcoming you to the School Campus. I'm happy to inform you that Loyola School, Jamshedpur, is the Top 1 in Jamshedpur and Top 2 in Jharkhand according to the EducationWorld Rankings 2026 under the Co-educational Day schools category.

Friends, Loyola always leads the way while keeping in mind the bright future of our students and the greater good of Society and the world at large. You are the Witnesses of Loyola Legacy. As I have written to you before, Loyola School, Jamshedpur, has embarked on an ambitious sustainability initiative to nurture ecological awareness among young people and inspire them to become responsible stewards of our common home (Mother Earth). Inspired by Tarumitra Ashram in Patna, we are developing the Tarumitra Centre for Ecology at Jesu Bhavan in Mango, Jamshedpur.

We live at a defining moment in human history. Climate change, pollution, deforestation, biodiversity loss and the degradation of natural ecosystems pose serious threats to our planet and to future generations. In this context, education must go beyond classroom knowledge. Our children need to experience nature, understand their interdependence with it and accept responsibility for protecting Mother Earth. They are not merely inheritors of the Earth; they are its future custodians.

The Tarumitra Centre is envisioned as a living centre of ecological learning, experience and action—a place where young people can encounter nature firsthand, learn sustainable practices and become ambassadors for the protection and renewal of our common home.

The proposed Centre will include an eco-park, landscaping, horticulture, plantation and hands-on ecological learning facilities, along with infrastructure such as a conference room and library. Accommodation is being developed for around 100 students and accompanying teachers, enabling them to stay over the weekends and deepen their experience of nature. Our students have already begun ecological activities and tree plantation with the support of the Forest Department and other like-minded organisations.

Importantly, the Centre is intended not only for Loyola students but as a shared ecological learning space for schools across Jamshedpur, promoting environmental education, experiential learning and collective action. We also look forward to partnering with like-minded environmental agencies to promote research among our students.

An Investment in the Future of our Children

The Tarumitra Centre is much more than an infrastructural project. It is an investment in forming a generation with the knowledge, compassion and commitment to care for the Earth.

The estimated project cost for infrastructure and landscaping has risen to ₹16 crore due to loose soil conditions requiring a strong pile foundation. We are making every effort to mobilise the resources required, so I invite you, dear Loyoleans, to become a partner in this noble mission. I earnestly look forward to your support through batchwise contributions, and the School will honour the three top-sponsoring batches. We assure you that your batch names will be prominently displayed at the Tarumitra Building. It's a huge project, and the School alone cannot complete it without your support. When this Centre comes into existence, you will be partners in a historical development of our Beloved Loyola. We count on your generosity.

Contributions are eligible for tax exemption under Section 80G of the Income Tax Act, as applicable. Cheques may be made payable to "Loyola Jamshedpur." Corporations may also contribute through their CSR funds, for which appropriate CSR receipts will be issued.

Together, let us give our children not only a future to inherit, but an Earth worth inheriting.

Thanking you in anticipation of your generous support and partnership.

Love Loyola! Live Loyola! Jai Loyola !

Yours sincerely,
